How do we get to the Cable Car? And can we walk?

For Cruise Ship Passengers: A regular shuttle service runs from the cruise terminal to the city at a cost of approximately NZ$10. The Cable Car is just a two minute walk from the Brandon Street shuttle stop.

Alternatively you can walk from the cruise terminal - this takes about 25 minutes. For the first 10 minutes the walkway is between a busy road and commercial port operations, however, after this the route take you along the picturesque waterfront to Queens Wharf. From there, turn left and cross over to Customhouse Quay and walk along Grey Street. The Cable Car is at the end of Grey Street on Lambton Quay.

There will also be Wellington volunteers (they will be wearing yellow jackets) placed around the city to help upon your arrival. They are very knowledgeable!

Do you have to queue for the Cable Car?

When a cruise ship is in port all day, the Cable Car is particularly busy between 9:30am and midday, however the queues often look worse than they are. There are two cable cars and they can each accommodate up to 70 people. With cars running every 7 minutes the queues tend to move quickly. When full, the terminal only accommodates two car loads and Cable Car Lane a further car load, so maximum wait times from the ticket booth are 15 minutes and 20 to 30 minutes from the end of the Cable Car Lane at Lambton Quay.

Can I use my Snapper Card on the Cable Car?

The Wellington Cable Car has simplified the fare policy, relative to your concession and independent of your direction. If your journey begins or ends at the Lambton Quay terminus gates you will be able to pay with you Snapper+ card. By paying with Snapper you will save more than 10% on the Wellington Cable Car compared to paying your fare with cash or EFTPOS.

Can I use a one day bus pass on the Cable Car?

The Cable Car is a stand-alone transport operation and no bus tickets are accepted for travel.

Do you have Senior Fares?

We do not have senior fares. We are part of the passenger transport reimbursement scheme under the New Zealand Government SuperGold Card concession, however this is only applicable to NZ SuperGold card holders, there is currently no reciprocal arrangement with any other country.
