ISLANDS OF LAKE TITICACA EXCURSION

Explore the Uros floating islands and the Island of Taquile on this full-day trip, one of our most popular excursions. Neither land, sky, or water, but rather at the intersection of the three.

Totora, or junco reed roots, serve as unique building material for the floating islands of the Uros Titino communities of Lake Titicaca. The Islands of Lake Titicaca excursion brings our guests close to the islands' Uro-Aymara communities, providing a unique opportunity to grow personally acquainted with the men –skilled reed raftsmen–, and women –expert weavers famous for their craft–, as well as the ancestral techniques used to keep their islands afloat, among other aspects of their remarkable heritage. In Taquile, guests will experience the Quechua imagination in the textile weavings unique to the area and recently included in UNESCO's Masterpieces of the Oral and Intangible Heritage of Humanity.

Enjoy lunch outdoors as you treat yourself to the grandeur of Puno's deep blue skies mirrored across Lake Titicaca with views of Bolivia's Cordillera Real, or Royal Mountain Range, in the background.

EXCURSION TO SILLUSTANI

Perhaps the region's largest and most important pre-Hispanic funeral ground, the archaeological complex of Sillustani is evidence of the area's rich past and offers visitors privileged views of Lake Umayo.

Host to a number of chullpas – the ancient funerary tower-like structures – built exclusively to house the remains of nobles and distinguished individuals, Sillustani is among the best kept archaeological sites in the area. The chullpas have varying architectural forms resulting from changing time periods and power shifts of groups such as the Pucara, Kolla, and Incas. Made up of rocks weighing between 2 and 6 tons, the largest tower in the complex, known as the Lizard Tower, is estimated to have taken over 50 years to build. Combining archaeology, history, and unforgettable views, Sillustani is a must-see location.

SHORT EXCURSIONS

- Colonial Temples Visit
- Birdwatching

COLONIAL TEMPLES VISIT

Stop and explore the epicentre of the region’s evangelizing mission during the Spanish conquest, in Puno’s Juli and Pomata churches. Located between Cuzco and the historic mining town of Potosí, these religious centres are at the intersection of millenary cultural legacies, the mining rush, and the clash of faiths. Harboured the construction of four churches in the XVI and XVII centuries, the town of Juli came to be known as the “Little Rome of America,” while Pomata grew famous for its baroque church, built entirely out of red pumice stone. The churches’ impressive architecture includes gold leaf altars –a technique unique to the time–, notable paintings of the vice regal period and large bells which are still rung to this day. Guests will be able to enjoy this excursion peacefully and without interruption, since this spot is not very well known by tourists and visitors.

On your way back, you’ll see the mysterious Aramu Muru, or Wilka Uta portal, a human-sized rectangular frame carved into a massive red rock, similar to sandstone. The mystical Aramu Muru was previously used as a holy site for rituals to the Sun god or Inti during Incan times.

As a member of the RAMSAR Convention on wildlife, this neighbouring protection site is home to some 103 species of migratory and residential birds, several of which are only native to this area.

Departing early in the morning or late in the afternoon, you'll find birds leaving for breakfast or returning home for a night's rest. Some species are highly recognizable on account of their colourful feathers while others are harder to spot in the opaque and subdued tones of their plumages used as camouflage. Depending on the season, you'll be able to see flamingos and Great crested grebes, among other species.

The Totora reed is as much part of the local diet as it is a construction material used for housing.
