

BULLO RIVER STATION

A landscape photograph of a rural area. In the foreground, there is a field of dry, golden-brown grass. A dark metal fence runs across the middle ground. To the left, a single tree stands. In the background, several more trees are visible against a hazy, grey sky. The text is overlaid on the upper half of the image.

Set on 500,000 acres of privately owned countryside, Bullo River Station is a working cattle station on the edge of the Kimberley in the northwest corner of Australia's Northern Territory.

The station's pristine landscape is carved with gorges and waterfalls, making it one of Australia's most breathtakingly beautiful stations.

An aerial photograph of a wide river valley. The river is a muddy, coffee-colored brown, winding through a lush green landscape. In the background, a prominent, rounded hill with a flat top stands out against the sky. The foreground is filled with dense green vegetation, likely a forest or scrubland. The overall scene is a natural, rural landscape.

Encircled by the coffee coloured waters of the Victoria River and rugged hills, this vast property is home to around 4,000 Brahman-cross cattle and a stunning variety of local fauna species including wallabies, dingoes, wild buffalo, birds, fish and crocodiles.

Inspired by our landscape, the 12 guest rooms are styled to provide an inviting sanctuary, perfect after a day on the station. Each room opens out onto the shady lawns and is cool and comfortable, with a king or twin-beds, air-conditioning and modern ensuite.
