WE EMPOWER CRUCIAL WILDERNESS AREAS IN EAST AFRICA, BENEFITTING PEOPLE AND NATURE ALIKE

By making bold and often new investments into areas that are ecologically and economically vulnerable, we aim to turn these regions into viable conservation economies, benefitting both the local communities as well as the environment.

We acknowledge that people and nature are inseparable partners, so we work closely with communities, authorities, NGOs and industry partners to achieve the best possible long-term outcomes for all concerned.

Twende Porini, Rekeru, Masai Mara, Kenya

Twende Porini, Little Oliver's, Tarangire, northern Tanzania

Twende Porini, meaning 'Let's go to the bush', is our flagship environmental education and community programme. Every year we host a group of children from local communities in the areas surrounding our camps for a five-day programme, teaching them about wildlife and the environment. Lessons are interspersed with games and fun activities, including sports, talent shows, and storytelling. The project exposes children to the importance of wildlife and conservation, as well as the benefits that sustainable tourism can bring to them and their families.
