The rainy season is generally considered to be a quieter time in safari industry, with fewer visitors due to wildlife sightings being more of a challenge, whilst animals disperse rather than concentrate around scarce water sources. Here at African Bush Camps we are acutely aware that it does not mean the animals are not there! The bush is lush and green, contrasted against the bright blue skies and clear air. Rain can be expected, but generally in the form of afternoon thunderstorms which clear to blue skies! The thunderstorms are an attraction in themselves as they move over dramatic landscapes. We believe it's a perfect time to visit, which is why we've put together this special offer.

Why you should go on safari in the Secret Season:

1. Lots of baby animals, which makes for some dramatic predator action
2. Lots of amazing birds in breeding plumage
3. Vivid colours showing the bush to be alive, which is great for photography
4. Clear air which is also great for photography
5. Dramatic Thunderstorms cooling off the heat of summer
6. Fewer tourists and vehicles because this is our best kept secret season
7. Less driving to see how many animals you see, but rather spend time with the animals to experience more animal behaviour
